BAJA

INTRODUCTION

LIVE TO RIDE RIDE TO EAT TACOS

Three years ago co-founder of Veloasia Willard Ford and I went to Baja as a quick break from riding in Asia. We invited some old cycling friends, including ex-pros John Brady and Tony Cruz. We had few expectations for this trip, never having been below Ensenada, which we'd visited before during races and fun rides during our youth. What we discovered was nothing short of a revelation that harkened back to the halcyon days of VeloAsia when we cycling paradise in Vietnam, Turkey and other parts unknown.

LOCATION

BAJA FEATURES NEW
PAVEMENT, LIGHT
TRAFFIC, AND RESPECTFUL DRIVERS.
THAT RIVAL THE CYCLING CRAZY
MECCAS OF ITALY AND FRANCE.

The beauty left us speechless. Sublime landscapes rivaling Joshua Tree, Moab, Big Sur, and the fire-red mesas of Idaho. Towering cactus spreads across valleys as far as the eye can see – 40 to 50 miles - along empty spaces. Indeed, most striking about Baja is the tranquility with most of Baja's 3.3 million residents living near the border cities of Tijuana and Ensenada.

IMAGINE OUR SHOCK WHEN WE DISCOVERED CYCLING PARADISE IN OUR BACKYARD.

With the current travel restrictions and uncertainty, long range travel is out. Forget the distant roads of France and Italy for now, and come enjoy kind people, great cuisine, perfect weather, and wonderful riding on Mexico's rediscovered west coast.
